

AP® Physics, Form IV

Course Description

This course is a calculus-based presentation of physics concepts with a concentration in mechanics. The course is designed to provide dedicated students the opportunity to develop the skill necessary to solve advanced problems in physics. The mathematical focus of the course will provide a greater depth of understanding of the physics topics discussed and their application.